General Marking Guidance

- All candidates must receive the same treatment. Examiners must mark the first candidate in exactly the same way as they mark the last.
- Mark schemes should be applied positively. Candidates must be rewarded for what they have shown they can do rather than penalised for omissions.
- Examiners should mark according to the mark scheme not according to their perception of where the grade boundaries may lie.
- There is no ceiling on achievement. All marks on the mark scheme should be used appropriately.
- All the marks on the mark scheme are designed to be awarded. Examiners should always award full marks if deserved, i.e. if the answer matches the mark scheme. Examiners should also be prepared to award zero marks if the candidate's response is not worthy of credit according to the mark scheme.
- Where some judgement is required, mark schemes will provide the principles by which marks will be awarded and exemplification may be limited.
- When examiners are in doubt regarding the application of the mark scheme to a candidate's response, the team leader must be consulted.
- Crossed out work should be marked UNLESS the candidate has replaced it with an alternative response.

1(d)	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. The indicative content below exemplifies some of the points that candidates may make but this does not imply that any of these must be included. Increased market share is likely to mean more sales/profit for Mars Wrigley • Market share is an indicator of how well brands are performing in relation to their competitors. An increase in its share may attract new consumers who may become loyal to Mars Wrigley • Higher market share may result in increased buying power. Mars Wrigley may benefit from economies of scale when buying cocoa, which may allow them to increase profitability • However, other objectives may be more important • The confectionery market is currently being affected by increased costs. Cost efficiencies, as an objective, may therefore be more important to Mars Wrigley • Customers may be deterred from buying from Mars Wrigley if it continues to reduce the size of its chocolate bars. Customer satisfaction may become more important to Mars Wrigley in order to maintain its loyal customers • Other objectives may be as important to Mars Wrigley such as profit maximisation or innovation in chocolate bars

Chains of reasoning are presented, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s) but may be assertions or incomplete. An attempt at an assessment is presented that is unbalanced and unlikely to show the significance of competing arguments.
Level 3	6-8	Accurate and thorough knowledge and understanding, supported throughout by relevant and effective use of the business behaviour/context. Logical chains of reasoning, showing cause(s) and/or effect(s). Assessment is balanced, well contextualised, using quantitative and/or qualitative information, and shows an awareness of competing arguments/factors.

Question	Assess the extent to which Tony Chocolonely's ethical sourcing may affect the success of its business. Indicative content
1(e)	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. The indicative content below exemplifies some of the points that candidates may make but this does not imply that any of these must be included. Other relevant points must also be credited. Knowledge, Application, Analysis, Evaluation - indicative content <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Ethical sourcing is when a business buys materials and products that are produced using fair working conditions and/or with no negative impact on the environment • Tony's Chocolonely pays a fair price to the cocoa farmers. This may provide good publicity and enhance the reputation of the business leading to an increase in customer loyalty for its chocolate bars • Tony's Chocolonely may attract new investors who are ethically minded, which will help to continue the growth of its business and compete with businesses such as Mars Wrigley • The ethical behaviour of Tony's Chocolonely may give it a unique selling point (USP) in the confectionery market, which may attract new customers and increase its revenue • However, the ethical behaviour of Tony's Chocolonely is likely to be expensive. Paying fair prices for cocoa, which is the main ingredient in chocolate, is likely to result in a high price for the chocolate bars. This may decrease the competitiveness of Tony's Chocolonely in the confectionery market • It is debateable whether consumers are actually concerned with ethical sourcing or whether they are more concerned with the price and taste of chocolate confectionery • Ethical sourcing may not be a sufficient reason for consumers to switch to Tony's Chocolonely. Consumers may have brand loyalty to long established chocolate confectionery such as Snickers or Mars Bars • It is possible that consumers are unaware of the ethical sourcing of Tony's Chocolonely and the business may not benefit from increased sales

Question	Assess whether the use of flexible working by Mumzworld is likely to increase employee performance. Indicative content
2(e)	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. The indicative content below exemplifies some of the points that candidates may make but this does not imply that any of these must be included. Other relevant points must also be credited. Knowledge, Application, Analysis, Evaluation - indicative content <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Flexible working relates to working arrangements in terms of working hours and working locations • Employees at Mumzworld are able to choose their working hours which may provide a better work life balance for employees. This may lead to loyal staff who are committed to their jobs which may increase the output of workers • Offering part-time hours may attract employees who have families and other commitments. This could result in higher employee morale and could increase productivity • Employees working from home may be more productive if they do not have to spend long periods of time traveling to and from work • Allowing the employees to choose working hours is aimed at balancing personal needs and job requirements. This may help Mumzworld to retain its best employees who require less training and are likely to be more productive • However, flexible working may not improve employee performance. Some employees may abuse the advantages of working from home and not be productive • Allowing employees to choose their own hours of work may not align with the needs of the business; if Mumzworld employees are not available at the busiest times of the day this may affect the overall productivity of the business • It may be argued that part-time employees are less committed to a business and so less productive than full-time employees • Allowing children in the office may not be conducive to high productivity if the children are disruptive and employees are distracted from their tasks

Question	Evaluate the extent to which 'Product' is the most important element of the marketing mix for Dyson . Indicative content
3	Indicative content guidance Answers must be credited by using the level descriptors (below) in line with the general marking guidance. Other relevant points must also be credited Knowledge, Application, Analysis, Evaluation - indicative content <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The marketing mix is a marketing tool used to attract customers to a business. Product is one element of the marketing mix, the other three elements are Place (distribution), Promotion and Price • Product refers to the product/service being sold and includes its features, quality, appearance and benefits offered to consumers • Product is an important element for Dyson as it focusses on new technology. Its hair products and vacuum cleaners must offer excellent performance to justify the high prices charged • Product is important to Dyson as it has created USP's for its products such as cordless vacuum cleaners. This will help it stand out from competitors and increase demand for its products • An emphasis on product quality is important to Dyson's marketing strategy as it relies on customer reviews and word of mouth recommendations to promote its products • However, all four elements of the marketing mix should be carefully considered and are equally as important to the success of Dyson • The distribution of the goods is important to consumers. It is important that Dyson's products are available to its target audience across the world • Dyson does not have its own stores and whilst its products are available at online stores such as Amazon, this may not support the exclusivity of its product range • Price is another element of the marketing mix. The premium prices charged by Dyson must be affordable for its target audience. If they are priced too high consumers may chose less expensive household products • Price skimming may be an important marketing strategy to ensure it has sufficient profit to further invest in research and development of new products

- | | |
| | <ul style="list-style-type: none">• Promotion is important to Dyson due to the large number of competitors selling home appliances. Not spending a large amount of advertising may limit awareness of its products which may reduce its competitiveness• Relying on word-of-mouth recommendations may cause difficulties for Dyson if it receives poor reviews and may impact its marketing mix• Overall, all elements of the marketing mix should work together to attract targeted consumers. As Dyson is a technology business known for its innovation, its product features are crucial to the success of its business |
